Days and Hours in a Garden

Eleanor Vere Boyle (1825 - 1916)

"Already the Snowdrops are giving way before impatient Hepaticas and Primroses, the bare Elms are thickening with purple, and we begin to count the Gentian buds. Everywhere Nature repairs herself in ceaseless round. Only in our human lives some vacant spots there may be, where the grass will not grow green again." A gentle description of an English garden and changes throughout the year. EVB, as she preferred to be known, wrote and illustrated four garden books in the last years of her life. - Summary From the Preface
